The University Library System

New University Librarian

The new University Librarian, Dr. Chi Wang, arrived in Hong Kong with his family on 17th December, 1970. Dr. Wang was born in Peking and after having attended secondary schools in Hong Kong and China went to the United States in 1949. He received his B.S. degree from the University of Maryland and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in history from Georgetown University. Dr. Wang entered the U.S. Government service in 1955 as an instructor in Chinese in the Foreign Service Institute, Department of State. He joined the Far Eastern Languages Section of the Descriptive Cataloging Division of the Library of Congress in 1958. In the Descriptive Cataloging Division, he assisted the Library of Congress in installing the first photocomposing machine in the United States. Under Dr. Wang's planning and supervision, a new printing procedure for Chinese, Japanese, and Korean catalogue cards was developed, which is still in use today. In 1960 he was promoted Oriental Science Specialist, Science and Technology Division. Dr. Wang became the Assistant Head of the Library's Chinese and Korean Section in 1966. Dr. Wang has been a part-time professor of Chinese and Far Eastern History at Georgetown University during the past ten years. He has also served in various U.S. Government agencies, research institutions and learned societies as consultant in research projects and publications pertaining to East Asia.

Among his publications are Mainland China Organizations of Higher Learning in Science and Technology and Their Publications, Japanese Scientific and Technical Serial Publications in the Collections of the Library of Congress, Nuclear Science in Mainland China: A Selected Bibliography, Chinese History, Selected Works in English—A Preliminary Bibliography. Between 1967 and 1970, Dr. Wang also served as the co-editor of the Chinese Education (a quarterly journal published by the International Arts and Sciences Press, White Plains, New York).

Reception for Overseas Librarians

A reception in honour of several leading librarians from Far Eastern libraries in the United States was given on 18th January, 1971. Dr. Chi Wang, University Librarian, hosted the reception and introduced the visiting scholars to meet many Hong Kong librarians and other guests.

The overseas librarians attending the reception included: Mr. Eugene Wu, Director, Harvard-Yenching Library; Dr. Tao-tai Hsia, Chief, Far East Law Division, Library of Congress; Mr. Ping-kuen Yu, Director, Center for Chinese Research Materials; and Mr. Weiyang Wan, Head, Asian Library, University of Michigan. They had participated in the 28th International Congress of Orientalists held in Canberra, Australia and were returning to the United States via Hong Kong.

During the reception, information and ideas were exchanged on libraries and their resources of Chinese books and research materials.

University Library under construction

Building Development

The five-storeyed University Library will have a total floor area of 86,000 square feet. When completed, it will hold some 400,000 volumes and will also have a photographic laboratory, a group study and audio-visual room, a periodical reading room, and conference and seminar rooms. Work on the building is progressing satisfactorily and is scheduled for completion by autumn this year.

Coordinated Library System

Since the University is a federal-type university, a coordinated university library system is desirable. The coordination is at present being carried out in three ways: (1) the centralized cataloguing of all current acquisitions in the Western languages, of both the University and College libraries, (2) the centralized acquisition of all books in both Oriental and Western languages, for all libraries, and (3) the central union card catalogue of all the books in the libraries of the three Foundation Colleges and the University Library.

The preparation work for the centralization of Oriental cataloguing, which is the fourth step of coordination of the university library system, is under way. When the classification system is agreed upon the centralization of Oriental cataloguing will immediately be carried out.

It is hoped that with the pooling of personnel resources from both the University and College libraries to form centralized processing, unnecessary duplications of work and purchasing will be minimized.

Reorganization of Library Committees

In view of the assumption of duty by Dr. Chi Wang, the Administrative and Academic-Planning Committee resolved that all former library committees of any description be dissolved and replaced by a Senate Committee on the University Libraries with the following membership:

Chairman: The Vice-Chancellor
Members: The three College Presidents
 The three University Faculty Deans
 Three Faculty representatives, one from each Faculty elected by the Faculty concerned
 The Registrar
 The Bursar
 The University Librarian
 (Secretary)

This Committee will be responsible for the policy and administration of the University Library System as a whole.

The day-to-day functioning of the Libraries and the coordination of such activities will be the responsibility of a University Library System Working Party with the following membership:

Chairman: The University Librarian
Members: The three College Librarians

The Centre of East Asian Studies

A new centre within the Institute of Social Studies and the Humanities was established on 1st January, 1971. The new institution, named The Centre of East Asian Studies, will conduct research on Japan, Korea and Southeast Asia in the fields of social studies and the humanities in close co-operation with other institutions and individual scholars.

The Vice-Chancellor has appointed as Director of the Centre, Dr. Chen Ching-Ho, Senior Lecturer in Chinese History of New Asia College, and Prof. N. Yamamoto, Visiting Professor of Japanology of the University, as Adviser. Members of the teaching staff of the University who have special preparation in the area of Asian studies will be invited to serve concurrently as Research Fellows. Experts in Asian studies at other institutions will be accepted as Visiting Research Fellows. Graduates of the University and students of the Graduate School, as well as students from other countries with equivalent qualifications, will qualify for appointment as Research Assistants and Visiting Research Assistants respectively. Meanwhile, negotiations with Japan, Korea and Singapore are going on in respect of exchanging Visiting Research Fellows and Visiting Research Assistants.

The Centre will be housed in the newly completed building of the Institute of Chinese Studies.

The major activities of the Centre will be:

1. To promote international interest in the study of the East Asian region:

The Centre shall work closely with universities and academic institutions abroad to carry out research in social, economic and cultural fields of various East Asian countries.

2. To train experts in East Asian studies to serve the University:

Research Fellows and Visiting Research Fellows have an obligation to supervise in their specific fields the Research Assistants and Visiting Research Assistants, in addition to their own research responsibilities. The Centre will recommend outstanding Research Assistants to distinguished universities in Japan, Korea and various Southeast Asian countries to further their studies leading to a Master or Doctoral degree, under scholarships granted by the governments of these countries. Upon the completion of their studies, they may be recruited to serve the University.

3. To provide facilities for research and survey for scholars from overseas countries:

The Centre shall liaise with the University of Hong Kong, the government of Hong Kong and local academic and cultural organizations to provide Visiting Research Fellows and Visiting Research Assistants with easy access to research facilities.

4. To acquire research materials and reference books:

The Centre shall set up a working library of East Asian Studies and shall have as its basic collection 1,200 volumes of books from the Southeast Asian Studies Section of New Asia Research Institute donated by The Asia Foundation and 1,500 volumes of books in the Japanese Language donated to the University by the government of Japan during the past four years. With the help of the University Library, this working library of East Asian Studies shall use the grant of the University for acquisition of reference books and research materials. It shall also seek donation of books from the governments of Japan, Korea, and other East Asian countries.

5. To hold seminars on research projects:

A seminar will be held every month for the research personnel to present their research reports. All research personnel will be required to attend the monthly seminar. When scholars in Asian studies from abroad visit Hong Kong, special seminars may be held.

6. To publish research reports:

Research reports of Research Fellows and Visiting Research Fellows will be published in University journals or in monograph series. In principle, the monograph series will mainly be in Chinese with a table of contents and a summary (or an explanatory note) in English, however, if it is an English or Japanese report, a Chinese table of contents and a summary (or an explanatory note) will be attached. An "Annual Report of the Centre of East Asian Studies" will be published in due course as an official publication of the Centre.

7. To participate in international conferences:

The research personnel shall be encouraged to participate actively in international conferences of Asian studies.

8. To exchange publications:

The Centre shall participate in an exchange scheme of its publications with overseas universities, research institutes and other academic institutions.

LIBA's Seminars

To give its students a better understanding of Hong Kong's business environment and a broader outlook on society, and to prepare them for careers in Hong Kong, the Lingnan Institute of Business Administration is introducing two seminars: "Seminar in Law" and "Seminar in Business and Society". These two seminars are required credit courses for all students of the Institute.

Seminar in Law

The "Seminar in Law" consists of twelve weekly discussions on law and administration in Hong Kong and is sponsored by The Asia Foundation. The discussion leaders are among Hong Kong's most prominent members of the legal profession, thanks to the assistance of the Hong Kong Bar Association. They are: Prof. Kenneth R. Redden, the Hon. Oswald Cheung, Q.C., Mr. Henry Litton, Q.C., Mr. D. O'Reilly Mayne, Q.C., Prof. D. M. E. Evans, Mr. John Rear, Mr. Robert Wei, Mr. T. S. Lo, the Hon. Mr. Justice McMullin, Mr. John J. Swaine, the Hon. Mr. Justice Huggins and Mr. C. J. Millar.

Three discussions were held in January 1971 on the following topics: "Introduction and Major Legal Systems of the World", "Financing the Export Trade: Law and Practice", and "Functions of a Barrister in the Modern World". Other topics will include: "The Theory of the Separation of Powers", "The Administration of the Criminal Law" and "The Basic Principles of Hong Kong's Labour Law".

The coordinator of these discussions is Prof. Kenneth E. Redden, Regional Adviser in Law of The Asia Foundation.

Seminar in Business and Society

The purpose of the "Seminar in Business and Society" is to increase students' concern about the relationships between business and other areas of human activity in Hong Kong. The Seminar, beginning in February 1971, will start with a study of the characteristics of the Hong Kong economy and case studies of two very different business organizations. One is a large, integrated, successful Hong Kong textile and garment firm; the other is a small, struggling bakery in Shaukiwan. A number of prominent businessmen will also be invited to lead discussions on topics relating to management-labour relationships, the activities of international companies in Hong Kong, entrepreneurship in Hong Kong, career planning and the social responsibilities of businessmen in Hong Kong.

Business leaders invited to speak at the Seminar are: Mr. Y. H. Chen, Mr. William Kung, Mr. Peter W. F. Chan, Mr. Paul Cheng, Mr. Glenn Prielipp, Mr. Li Chi-hung, Mr. Rogerio Lam, Mr. P. W. Hewitson, and Dr. the Hon. P. Y. Tang.

The Pre-Employment Workshop

The third Pre-Employment Workshop, organized by the Appointments Service of the University, was held on 7th and 8th January, 1971. The Workshop, attended by approximately 240 third- and fourth-year undergraduates and 90 community leaders, aimed at bringing students together with their elders in an atmosphere conducive to counselling and discussions on all facets of graduate placement. The sponsors of this annual event were: American International Group of Companies in Hong Kong, The Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, Island Navigation Corporation, Ltd., and Mobil Oil Hong Kong Ltd.

Opening the Workshop, Dr. C. T. Yung, Pro-Vice-Chancellor of the University and Chairman of the Appointments Board, said that the purpose of the Workshop was to help students learn what is expected of them when they graduate and that in order to start their careers with purpose and high motivation, they should know the requirements of the employers.

Following Dr. Yung's opening remarks, Mr. Peter M. Whyte, Dean of Students of the University of Hong Kong, gave an address on "Control of Personnel in the Contemporary Social and Industrial Climate". Mr. Whyte told the participating undergraduates that the two crucial factors which would influence their success in the job situation were "comprehension of the people with whom you work and comprehension of the nature of the job itself".

Dr. C. T. Yung's Opening Remarks

It gives me great pleasure to declare open the 1971 Pre-Employment Workshop of The Chinese University of Hong Kong. This is our Third Annual Exercise and I do hope that we shall see evidences of improvement in both our organization and our mechanics of operation. Before giving you a brief account of the details, I would like, on behalf of the University, to welcome each and every one of you and to thank you for coming to this Workshop.

We are especially grateful for your continuing support given to our University activities and to this Workshop in particular. Our programme of graduate placement is based upon your cooperation in more ways than one. The University's efforts alone cannot possibly be sufficient. Our joint effort is to ensure a common understanding on two critical issues: what the community or employing public expects of the University graduates and what the University should do in preparing its graduates for useful employment here in Hong Kong. Above all, our students must become aware of the requirements of our employers so that they may launch their careers with purpose and high motivation. This requires a process of orientation in their undergraduate years which is quite apart from book knowledge and academic learning. The Pre-Employment Workshop is only one of several means to achieve this objective, but it is an extremely important and useful way of helping our students learn what is expected of them when they graduate. Over the last three years we have been delighted to observe the increasingly enthusiastic participation in our Workshops by all three of the parties concerned—the students, the University staff and the employers.

This year we are very fortunate to have our Workshop sponsored by four of Hong Kong's leading companies: The Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, the American International Group of Companies in Hong Kong, the Island Navigation Corporation, Ltd. and the Mobil Oil Hong Kong Ltd. These four companies have donated sums of money to enable us to finance the various activities of the Workshop. Needless to say, the mounting of a Workshop of this magnitude is expensive. Our University resources are limited and thus we welcome all the more this generous help from our well-wishers. Their generosity has enabled us to present a programme with the form and substance it deserves. Actually, we are spending approximately $100 for each student attending the Workshop, and, even at that, we are exercising every care and economy.

The opening of the 1971 Workshop happily coincides with the publication of the first two books in a new Pre-Employment Information Series. The first of these is Your Job—To Have and To Hold; it is an intimate discussion of the basic aspects of student employment. This book is designed to take the place of the orientation programme which was included in the earlier Workshops. The second book is Career Prospects in Hong Kong; it lists 103 local companies and institutions and gives concise and pertinent information on the history, organization, products and services, personnel policies and employment practices of each of these companies or institutions. This book is intended as a comprehensive and practical reference for all job-seeking university students. Both of these books have been prepared by Dr. Francis K. Pan, Director of our Appointments Service. I am sure you will all agree that these two books fill a very real need here in Hong Kong and that we owe Dr. Pan our sincere appreciation for having written and published them. I think you will find that they are very well done—which is what we have come to expect from Dr. Pan.

I also wish to express our sincere appreciation to The Asia Foundation for their gift which took care of the printing costs of these two books. This permits us to offer them to students at a nominal price, and proceeds from the sales will contribute toward a Pre-Employment Workshop Fund. We sincerely hope that students will acquire these books for their own benefit in the same helpful spirit with which they have been prepared.

You may have noticed from the Workshop Brochure that we are trying to offer a much more efficient schedule of sessions. All students will attend the workshops on Government Services and Teaching as a Career, which follow this Opening Session. Tomorrow each student has the option of attending three workshops of his own choice. The panel composition of each workshop has also been enlarged to cope with the increasing enrolment. We shall also have a Summary Report to cover intra-workshop discussions tomorrow evening. We are striving, I hope, to achieve a full utilization of both the time and manpower available to us.

We are also introducing for the first time a Careers' Exhibition to be held simultaneously with the Workshop. It is located in the Exhibition Gallery, which is on the 7th Floor of the City Hall High Block. You are all invited to visit this Exhibition. The Exhibition is another attempt on our part to show the students visually the corporate or institutional set-up in which they may associate themselves in their future careers. This Exhibition is a new venture, and we expect that more exhibitors will want to participate in the future. To all exhibitors, the University is most appreciative and grateful.

You may be interested to know that there are 239 students, 86 panelists, 22 administrative staff members and 23 student workers participating in this Workshop. Together with a number of specially invited guests, there are over four hundred persons involved.

I shall not go further into the particulars, as the Director of the Appointments Service will make his report a little later. However, I do wish to thank once more our sponsors, the exhibitors, the Panel Chairmen and the Panel Members. I also wish to add a special word of appreciation to Dr. Francis K. Pan and to the members of the staff of the Appointments Service, as it is their imagination, initiative, hard work and attention to details that have made this Workshop possible. You are all working together toward a new target of achievement in the University's placement programme.

Now it is my pleasure to introduce to you Mr. Peter M. Whyte, Dean of Students of the University of Hong Kong. Mr. Whyte has come to assume a very important post, that of supervising and co-ordinating all student affairs at our sister university. On an occasion like this, we feel most privileged to have him as our keynote speaker.

Programme

As a new feature, the two-day Workshop was devoted wholly to discussions of professional aspects divided into 15 workshop panels. Prominent community leaders and members of staff of the University were invited to form the panels covering the following fields of careers:

- I. Hong Kong Government Services
(Chairman: Mr. S. W. Rainbird)
- II. & III. Teaching as a Career

The workshops previously devoted to the orientation of basic subjects of job applications, interviews etc. have been dispensed with this year. In their place, a booklet entitled Your Job—To Have and To Hold in the Pre-Employment Information Series has been published by the Appointments Service to provide students with many practical suggestions. Another book, named Career Prospects in Hong Kong, published in the same Series, is a practical reference covering 103 local companies for all job-seeking university graduates. Both books were prepared by Dr. Francis K. Pan, Director of the Appointments Service, and the printing costs were borne by The Asia Foundation.

A Careers' Exhibition was held on 7th and 8th January at the Exhibition Gallery of the City Hall for the students and the public. The main object of the Exhibition was to show the students visually the objectives and organization of progressive business establishments in which they might be associated in their future careers. Participating organizations of the Exhibition were:

- American International Group of Companies in Hong Kong
- The Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation
- Island Navigation Corporation, Ltd.
- Mobil Oil Hong Kong Ltd.
- Hong Kong Government
- Hong Kong Tourist Association
- Macmillan Publishers (H.K.) Ltd.
- Pan-American World Airways Inc.
- The Chinese University of Hong Kong Appointments Service
- The Chinese University of Hong Kong Publications Office

Speaking at the closing ceremony, Mr. N.H. Young, Acting Registrar of the University, mentioned that the Workshop had come to a successful conclusion because: "Over the two days, the students have met with a representative cross-section of our community leaders in fellowship and in an intimate discussion of the problems which concern their career-making. This exposure and contact is in itself a unique experience that the students will long remember. They have been brought face to face with the best examples and images of success which some day they hope to achieve themselves". Mr. Young also thanked the chairmen and members of the workshop panels, the sponsors, and members of staff and student workers for their invaluable assistance in making the Workshop successful.

Exhibition of the Studies on The Dream of the Red Chamber
