University Administration Organization

The three constituent Colleges were established long before The Chinese University came into being in October, 1963. The University, therefore, was not organized as a unitary institution. Nor could it be run in the regular pattern of a federal university, when its policy is to eliminate unnecessary duplication in administration and to introduce maximum complementarity among the teaching departments of the constituent Colleges.

At the hub of the whole University is the Administrative and Academic-Planning Committee, the composition and duty of which are set forth in the amended Statutes adopted by the University Council in October, 1965. Specifically, the AACP is chaired by the Vice-Chancellor with the Presidents of the three constituent Colleges as members and the University Registrar as secretary. In its weekly meetings, every aspect of both university-wide and college operations is considered in detail. Its duty, as defined by the Statutes, is as follows:

(a) to assist the Vice-Chancellor in the performance of his duties;
(b) to initiate plans of University development;
(c) to assist the Vice-Chancellor in reviewing and co-ordinating the annual and supplementary estimates of recurrent and capital expenditures of the Colleges and those for the central activities of the University, before transmitting them to the Finance Committee of the Council;
(d) to review all proposed academic and administrative appointments by the Colleges and the University that are at and above the level of Tutors and Demonstrators or their equivalent (except College Presidents and Vice-Executives) before these appointments are made by the appropriate authorities;
(e) to be informed of all clerical and technical appointments by the Colleges and the University;
(f) to deal with other matters referred to it by the Council.

In practice, the AACP is the body to which suggestions flow and from which decisions and recommendations are made. It reports to the Council through the Vice-Chancellor.
The work on academic planning has recently been taken up by the newly established Academic Planning Committee, the composition, functions and duties of which were reported in detail in the July-August issue of the Bulletin. With the Vice-Chancellor in the chair and three College Presidents and six elected Faculty Deans and representatives, this Committee devotes its entire attention to policies, ideas and suggestions on academic programmes, and reports to the Senate through the Vice-Chancellor.

Since the central office was removed to the new campus site at Shatin in March, 1969, the University has acquired a home-base, in the physical sense. Two important decisions relating to the administrative structure of the University were made to meet urgent needs. First, a University Bursar’s Office was created, as reported in the July-August issue of the Bulletin. Mrs. E.J. Fehl, the Deputy Registrar then, was appointed to the post of University Bursar responsible for finance and business affairs.

Planning The Chinese University Campus was a monumental task. Now that the master development plan has been adopted and new building projects are being carried out according to schedule, a central body is essential to oversee, adjust and co-ordinate all the activities. Mr. Duval S. Adams was appointed Special Assistant to the Vice-Chancellor, acting at the same time as Building Expenditure Comptroller. He assumed duty on 1st September, 1969, heading up the Physical Development Division that encompasses the University Buildings Office. The task of ensuring the building of the new campus in the next few years according to schedule and budget will fall on the newly organized Physical Development Division.

In addition to the Colleges, which are responsible for undergraduate teaching, the most important programme of the University is known as the Central Activities which serve the entire University. According to the Statutes, the terms of reference of the Central Activities are as follows:—

(a) the administrative headquarters of the University;
(b) the University Library and laboratories;
(c) programmes of advanced studies or research leading to certificates, diplomas, or higher degrees of the University;
(d) such other buildings, institutes and organized activities as shall be determined by the Council.

Besides central administration, the Central Activities now include:—

- Institutes and Centres
- Graduate School
- School of Education
- University Library
- Science Centre
- Extramural Studies
- Inter-University Relations
- Health Service
- Publications
- Appointments Service

The Research Institutes and Centres and the Graduate School draw their personnel almost entirely from the teaching staff of the three constituent Colleges.

Two organization charts (see attached charts) have now been prepared for the first time, one showing Policy-Making and Planning Bodies and the other the Administrative Structure. They represent the result of evolution over the past six years, and stand as an innovation in university administration and management.

Seven New Professors

The University is pleased to announce the appointment of seven new professors, university-wide, to teach and conduct research projects beginning from the 1969/1970 academic year.

University Health Centre

Donation from Yale-in-China Association

The Trustees of the Yale-in-China Association, Inc., New Haven, Connecticut, U.S.A., had passed the resolution in June, 1969 to donate a sum of US$200,000 for the construction of the University Health Centre. The Chinese University accepted this gift and support with deep appreciation and gratitude. The University Health Centre represents another manifestation of international co-operation so basic to the development of the University.

Construction Plan

The site formation work for the University Health Centre has already been completed. The architectural drawings of the building are now under preparation. The Centre itself is expected to be completed in March, 1971.

University Health Programme

Meanwhile, in preparation for the completion of the University Health Centre, the University Health Programme Committee submitted a detailed report to the Vice-Chancellor, after careful examination of the various aspects of the entire Programme. In the report, recommendations were made concerning the budgeting, the scheme of medical benefits for student and staff now in operation and the proposal of an interim scheme for the three year period from 1968 to 1971. The Committee felt that the interim scheme should draw the health work of the Colleges closer together, keeping in mind the long range Programme which would be introduced when the entire university has moved to the Shatin campus. It also recommended that the Director of University Health Service be recruited as soon as possible.

University Health Programme Committee

The composition of the University Health Programme Committee is as follows:—

Dr. Louise Hutchins, Chairman
The Hon. Q. W. Lee
Dr. Morgan Lu
Mrs. E. J. Fehl, Member/Secretary

First Director of University Health Service

Acting according to the recommendations made by the University Health Programme Committee, the University has appointed Dr. Robert Dan to be the first Director of the University Health Service. Dr. Dan will assume duty on 1st January, 1970, but he is to start planning and co-ordinating the health scheme and Programme immediately, especially in close consultations with Dr. Louise Hutchins and her Committee, in anticipation of the completion of the University Health Centre in 1971, by which time the students and staff would be able to enjoy fuller medical benefits.

Address by Dr. Choh-Ming Li

Today is the 20th Anniversary of the College Founders' Day of New Asia College. To be able to attend and express my felicitations on such an occasion is a pleasure as well as an honour.
There is a Chinese saying: “It takes ten years for a tree to grow up. It takes a hundred years for the fruits of education to ripen.” To train and nurture potential leaders of a community is a long-range undertaking which may take up the span of a whole century. The celebration of New Asia’s 20th Anniversary, in this sense, opens up to a vista of vast promises. For if we take into consideration the pioneering spirit when New Asia College came into being on a side street of Nathan Road, all the difficulties it had encountered and overcome since then and the potential contribution it will continue to make to higher education in Hong Kong, all of us here would agree that the 20th Anniversary is indeed an occasion that deserves commemoration.

Three years from now, New Asia College will move to Shatin. Together with Chung Chi College and United College, it will form an integral part of The Chinese University Campus. These three foundation colleges are complementary to one another, working closely together in a university structure without losing their own individualities at the same time.

At the Asian Workshop on Higher Education held at The Chinese University last month, New Asia College contributed a position paper: “On the Import of ‘the Humanities’,” quoting and giving emphasis to the words of an Italian scholar of the Renaissance: “the Unity of Truth” and “the Dignity of Man”. When people all over the world are beginning to doubt the spiritual values of our human heritage, it is refreshing to hear the words of “the Dignity of Man” reiterated. The emphasis on humanism is part of New Asia’s individuality and is very much in line with the thinking of The Chinese University.

What, then, is the essence of humanism? It would be best to cite two concrete illustrations. The Scotch bard, Robert Burns, once wrote:

“A man is a man for all that”

This line reflects the basic doctrine of Christianity: All human beings are equal in the eyes of God. It also represents the central idea of modern individualism: every one is equal to his fellows in his own right.

Tao Yuan-Ming, a Chinese poet in the Chin Dynasty, dispatched a servant to his son and in his letter wrote: “Treat him well. He, too, is a son.” Humanism, here, is tainted with the broad humanity and filial piety of the Chinese. Whether Scotch or Chinese, their pathos stems from the same source: Charity and Dignity of Man.

Thus, the words of the two poets do not contradict, but rather complement each other. The essence of humanism lies in these two lines: you must respect others as much as you respect yourself.

So, today, upon the occasion of celebrating the 20th Anniversary of New Asia College, I would like to borrow the words of these two poets to congratulate New Asia with the sincere expectation that New Asia will continue to uphold its ideals of humanism and to bear the fruits of its long-range effort in the training and nurturing of potential leaders for the community.

Lectures, Exhibitions, Performances and Publications

A variety of exhibitions was held on New Asia College campus from 27th to 29th September in celebration of the Twentieth Anniversary. The exhibitions included a display of rare Chinese books, photographs of the College, the staff’s publications and displays sponsored by the Biology, Chemistry, Physics, Mathematics, Sociology and Business Management Departments of the College. Films and slides of special interest were shown in the amphitheatre and various classrooms.

In honour of the Twentieth Anniversary, New Asia College published, among others, the following books on 28th September, 1969:

1. Special Bulletin in Celebration of the College’s Twentieth Anniversary
   (A historical account and general information of New Asia College with photographs and a record of the College Anthem)

2. New Asia Academic Annual
   (Twenty-one articles on humanities, social and natural sciences)

3. New Asia Journal, Volume IX, No. 1
   (Seven articles on literature, history and philosophy, contributed by the academic staff of the Institute of Advanced Chinese Studies and Research)

4. Index to Essays, Lectures and Research Works by the Institute of Advanced Chinese Studies and Research
   (An index to more than six hundred essays, lectures and research papers of the Institute)

5. Essays on Philosophy
   (Sixteen essays written by Mr. Hsieh Tso-yu)

To celebrate the Twentieth Anniversary of the College’s Founders’ Day, the College has launched a series of programmes which will last for three months starting from the end of September. The programmes will include exhibitions, Open Day, various drama and music performances, public lectures by eminent scholars and a bazaar.

Introduction of Italian Studies

The Italian Government has offered to this University, through the Consul-General in Hong Kong, a lectureship annually for the institution of Italian studies at the University in September 1969. Madame Bianca Garufi, an accomplished novelist and poet, has been appointed to the post.

The course, which is at present open to first- and second-year students, aims at a basic knowledge of spoken and written Italian. Emphasis is placed, at least for the first year, on oral practice, elementary grammar and simple composition.

These studies come under the Area Programme of the University organized on an inter-disciplinary and intercollegiate basis. The Inter-Disciplinary Committee for French, German and Japanese has accordingly been renamed "Inter-Disciplinary Committee for French, German, Japanese and Italian Studies".

Orientation Programme for Californian Students

Sixteen University of California students arrived in Hong Kong on 30th August to join this University for one year under an exchange agreement between the two Universities. These include three graduate students who, besides taking up advanced studies in the University, would be assigned teaching duties at the Colleges.

A one-week orientation programme after the Californian students' arrival was arranged. On 1st September, the students visited the Central Office of the University in Benjamin Franklin Centre to attend a ceremony to inaugurate the orientation programme to which the Presidents of the Colleges were invited. Mr. H.T. Wu, Registrar of the University, gave a talk on the structure of the University. Mr. Paul K.C. Tsui, Deputy Secretary for Home Affairs, was invited to give a talk on Hong Kong, which was followed by lively discussions and interesting questions.

Accompanied by Prof. A. Steiner, Director of the University of California Study Centre, and Prof. B. Glassburner, Associate Director of the Centre, these students visited the three Foundation Colleges. They were met by the Presidents and the academic and administrative staff of the Colleges. Visit was also made to the American Consulate General on 5th September, where they were welcomed by the representatives of several sections of the Consulate General and were explained the affairs of the various sections.

Under the same exchange programme, ten staff members and graduates of The Chinese University have also been awarded tuition waivers to pursue graduate studies at the University of California.

Gifts to the University

The following scholarships have been donated to the Lingnan Institute of Business Administration of this University:

中國晉朝大詩人陶淵明曾經派一個僕人去照顧他的兒子，同時寫信告訴他︰「此亦人子也，可善遇之。」意思就是：「你應該好好的待他，因為他也有一個愛他的父親。」這種人文主義的精神已經染上了中國的倫理觀念和人道主義的色彩，可是同樣充滿了慈愛，充滿了尊敬！

這兩位作家的話，並不是互相矛盾的，而是可以互為包容的。所謂人文主義的真精神，都可以在這兩句話中找到，那就是：尊重別人正如尊重自己一樣。

今天新亞書院成立二十周年，我願借用上面這兩位作家的話來祝賀新亞書院，希望新亞能繼續抱着人文主義的理想，不停努力以求實踐「百年樹人」的目標。
